

Coaching & Consulting

When we are open for change, new ways emerge on the horizon.
A new situation often comes with question marks.

Maybe you currently find yourself in one of the following situations:

- Your private or business environment is about to change, and you want to realize and use upcoming opportunities.
- As female manager you want to further enhance your management capabilities.
- You like to improve teamwork in your department and therefore look for constructive ways to achieve this.
- Balancing your managers' expectations with your own resources is a challenge and you look for support to find and communicate a balanced approach.
- A crucial conversation in your family is set up and you want to prepare yourself and be ready to articulate your needs and concerns.

In our coaching sessions we accompany you in developmental and change processes- in business and private life.

Through our dialogue we help you to get awareness of your interests and needs. We offer an interest-based and structured approach so that you can realize new options and how to make them work. Your way and how to follow it will become transparent to you.

We are happy to offer coaching in English or German language- either in person or virtually (phone or Skype).
